Capture Two Lines of Trenches and Advance Over Five Hundred Yards.

TURKS LOSE HEAVILY

English Troops Find Large Proportion of Turkish Soldiers Dead in Trenches From Melinite Shells.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Paris, June 24.—An official note made public at Paris today gives details of land operations on the north side of the Dardanelles between June 1 and 8, and recites a result of the attack by the French and British, a gain of 150 to 400 yards along a front of more than a mile being made. Turkish troops took over five hundred prisoners.

The dispatch says:
"At about eleven o'clock in the morning the bombardment of the enemy's position was begun. Owing to a long period of dry weather, huge clouds of dust were thrown up by the shells and blown back to our lines by a north wind, a condition which made our firing difficult."

Silence Turk Batteries.
"The enemy made only an occasional reply to the hail of 75 gans. Toward noon our aeroplane reported all of the enemy's batteries had been silenced. Our troops accordingly dashed to the trenches and cliffs which dominate the gulf of Saros in the direction of the deep ravine of Kereves."

"The principal attack was made on the Turkish position. The British soldiers charged the trenches of the enemy and found a majority of Turkish defenders had been killed by the melinite shells. Without stopping at the first success, our allies charged again and were successful in occupying the second line of trenches. At this point they were given support which permitted them to turn about and attack and capture a Turkish redoubt which still held out."

Make Gain of 500 Yards.
"They took also further positions on the right and left of the first line of trenches and gained approximately five hundred yards in depth. The British charged and captured a strong position situated in front of Kereves Dere. The first line soon was taken as was also a Turkish fortress, which, with its batteries, was heavily fortified by barbed wire entanglements. We called this 'Haricot.' The result of our attacks gave us an advance ranging from 150 to 500 yards on the latter front of a mile and one-half. British troops took five hundred prisoners, including ten officers and seven German marines, who formerly belonged to the German warships Goeben and Breslau, vessels which since the war have been under the Turkish flag."

TURKS CLAIM GAIN MADE IN CAUCASIA

Important Russian Position Taken After Bitter Fighting Says Official Report.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Constantinople, June 23, via wireless to Berlin and London, June 24.—Another success for the Turks in the Caucasus is reported in an official statement issued tonight at the war office, which says:

"On the afternoon of the 23rd on the Caucasian front in the direction of Olti, after bitter fighting, the Turks captured 2,900 meters (about one and three-quarters miles) on the Carabag Heights in the direction of Kalebogaz. The enemy suffered heavy losses of ammunition and a quantity of war material."

The Carabag district of Transcaucasia lies between the Kura and Aras rivers in the government of Yelizavetpol. The chief town is Shusha.

BRITISH TAKE FOUR MEN OFF STEAMSHIP

Stopped Linger Off Coast and Take Four Passengers Off Who It Is Claimed Were Germans.

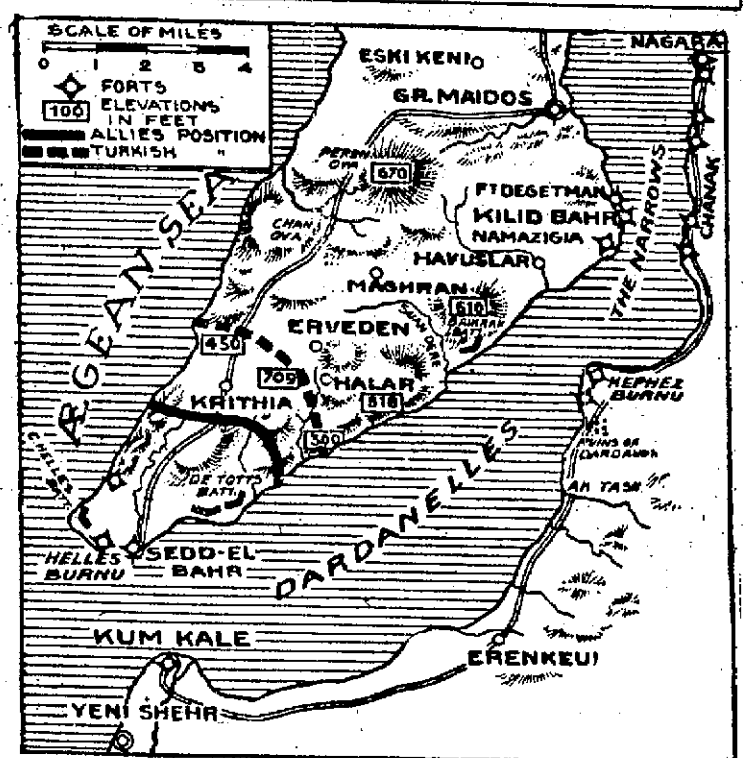

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
New York, June 24.—Officers and passengers of the Scandinavian liner Frederick VIII, from Scandinavian ports, said on their arrival today that four passengers, two cabin and two steerage, were taken off the ship by British authorities at Storövar, where the steamer was diverted by the British patrol. The reasons given for the removal of the passengers were that they were apparently of German birth. Passengers on the vessel included an American Red Cross nurse who had been on duty in Vienna and Budapest. Six of the nurses wore decorations given them by Archduke Francis Salvator, chief of the Austrian Red Cross, for their work.

ALLIES' HOLD SLIGHT ON DARDANELLES

The allied troops who landed at Sedd-el-Bahr, on the Gallipoli Peninsula, hold about ten square miles of the extreme southern part of the peninsula, the occupancy of which is maintained with the greatest difficulties. The ground held by the allies consists principally of a small plateau to the north of Sedd-el-Bahr and two adjoining ridges to the northwest, between which the Turks are pushing advance trenches.

DEFENDS BOARD PLAN FROM NORMAL ATTACK

GOV. PHILIPP ISSUES SECOND STATEMENT REPLYING TO REGENTS ON HIS EDUCATION BILL.

Measure Urged by Administration in Interest of Economy and Balance in Favor of Common Schools.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Madison, Wis., June 24.—Governor Philipp issued a second statement today in answer to the arguments of the state board of normal regents against the central board of education, as follows:

"To oppose a central board because it is new and to argue against any change of present boards because 'they have existed fifty years' does not sound like the progressive Wisconsin. Education is government school progress like every other government. The most dangerous of all standstills is the educational standstill. Decentralization has cost our common schools too much while it was building up University and normal schools. The reasons for unification are old and pressing."

Additional responsibilities and greater powers under the new board will not deter him. The honorarium of eight dollars per day will permit able men on middle and lower incomes to give distinguished service and will permit labor to have a voice in the educational progress demands. Moreover, it will prevent the specious reasoning and the doubtful practices of the present normal board of regents which when legislated into law would violate the letter of the law by a per diem allowance for special services after so defining special service that it practically means any and every service. One regent drew last year $440 for 88 days of "special service" while the board of regents received last year, in addition to their expenses, $2,000.

"The normal board's description of its laborious attention to details is a strong argument for a central board which will leave details to educators and business agents. Public spirited regents should give their attention to questions of policy and government shown by properly summarized details to need attention. The new board with a highly equipped educational and business office, managed by more than the present regents know. The state will gain if normal regents stop examining candidates for graduation and stop attending to 'all kinds of administrative actions.' A board of fifteen can arrange to do all the visiting of institutions that will be of any help to institutions or to regents."

The central board will do away with the resident regent who now makes of his normal school president. Will Secure Balance.
"Men of ability will not be overwhelmed with varied interests. It is work is properly summarized and centralized, the board is proposed to put a great emphasis upon varied and special interests of higher institutions and to begin to emphasize interests in common with common schools. Using its present officers to organize details, the central board could easily know more than the present boards."

"While it is claimed that details of educational institutions are now managed by the present boards, as a matter of fact the boards act almost entirely upon suggestion and recommendations of educational men in charge. They have practically no information except as they get it from these educational men. This is so marked in case of the normal board that the state pays for the time and expense of bringing to Madison all the normal school presidents to give information which ought to be available without their presence."

"Instead of introducing confusion and providing trouble for subsequent legislatures, the central board will get rid of confusion and minimize trouble. It is generally admitted by the strongest opponents of the proposed law that it would be more confusing and more confusing than the present system which has meant, lobbying, log rolling, rivalry, personal appeals and the pressing of claims upon legislators by regents and officers who had no information concerning the needs and requirements of any schools except their own, and little information with respect to their own schools."

Normal School Budget.
"What the normal regents did regarding their budget as described by them does not constitute proper review. Arguing for details of a budget before a finance committee is not reviewing budget estimates from the standpoint of the tax payer or the interests of schools. To know why 'presidents want to spend more money is not proper review of estimates in the sense I use the term in my message. This is proved by the fact that within a short time after the finance committee said that the normal board estimates must be cut $170,000 a year, an entirely different kind of review began and in a surprisingly short time the normal board found facts which they should have had before they ever presented the budget to the legislature and facts which show that the original estimates were altogether too large."

As for the University regents, their budget came to the legislature and to the Governor this year without the statement that there had not been time to submit it for review and revision. Must Recognize Failure.
"Hasty action the normal regents decry. They say 'it is better to be safe than to be sorry.' The answer is that nothing is so unsafe as failure to act when facts show that time for action has come or as failure to be sorry when conditions show that present methods are unsatisfactory. The present system has failed for over fifty years. Our gratitude for its achievements should not prevent our frank admission of its failure. Our system has failed to give the rural and common schools proportionate attention. This defect a central board will cure because it insures two results which have been demanded from one end of the state to the other: to stop the separate consideration of disproportionate allowances to the University and the normal schools and insure more adequate rural and common schools."

Sisters and Nurses Killed When Hospital of Holy Sacrament is Damaged—Other War News.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
London, June 24.—A dispatch from Amsterdam to the Central News says that the Germans, following their victory in Galicia, have already made preparations for another attempt to capture Warsaw. According to this dispatch German troops from Galicia already have been transferred to the Bura front.

Offensive Powers Lost.
Heavy fighting was reported to the north of Lemberg even before the fall of this city, so that Grand Duke Nicholas, commander-in-chief of the Russian forces in the field, may have had some difficulty in withdrawing his men to their new lines along the river Bug.

Military critics in London are admitting reluctantly today that the power of offensive action passed for some time from the hands of the Russians, while special dispatches from Petrograd declare that it may be even years before the Austro-German aggressive can be won down. It is generally admitted that Russia, like England, is not suffering from lack of men, but a shortage of munitions has prevented the initiating of the general allied offensive, expected early this summer.

German Cross Decried.
Berlin, June 24.—A further victory for the Austro-German forces in Galicia was announced today at army headquarters. The army of General von Linsingen, which had been fighting with stubborn opposition to the Russians along the Dnieper river front, has succeeded in crossing the river.

Nurses Lose Lives.
Paris, June 24.—The French official report says: "In the region to the north of Arras last night passed relatively calm, if we except the territory of the German command. The enemy's bombardment never ceased. The enemy's bombardment of the hospital of the Holy Sacrament being particularly damaged. Some sisters and some nurses lost their lives."

Rome Issues Statement.
Rome, June 23, via Paris, June 24.—The official statement issued tonight at the headquarters of the general staff of the Italian army is as follows:

"Along the entire front there has been an artillery duel between pieces of heavy and medium calibre. The enemy endeavored last night to attack Montepiano, Val Grande, and Val Piccolo and along the neighboring heights convoys have been seen going from Plezzo toward the upper Isanzo. In the Montenegro region and along the Isanzo the day of June 22 passed quietly."

Repulse Austrians.
Verona, Italy, June 24.—According to reliable information that has reached Verona, the Austrians have repulsed such reinforcements as enabled them to take the offensive throughout the front, but are constantly being repulsed everywhere with heavy losses.

Dispatch Credits That American Oil Ship Going Through Malta Seized by Authorities.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
London, June 24.—A dispatch from Alexandria, Egypt, to London, said that a prize court writ has been issued against American steamer Gargyle.

The American steamer Gargyle left New York May 15 for Alexandria. On her way out, she was ported at Malta May 31. The steamer belonged to the Vacuum Oil company and is of 4400 gross tons.

PROBLEM OF INSURANCE AGAINST DAMAGE FROM AIR CRAFT RAIDS REFUSED.
[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
London, June 24.—The problem of insurance against damage by air craft raids has become a serious one for merchants in London and other commercial centers near the East Coast. The insurance companies have been beset with applications for insurance against fires started by Zeppelins but the companies doing fire insurance business have refused to take risks, insuring against Zeppelins is a pure gamble since there is nothing in the way of experience or probabilities on which any sound system can be based.

Consequently the British government will be obliged to take charge of the matter, as it did in insuring merchant ships in the earlier days of the war. Banks holding bills against goods in London warehouses are demanding policies for aircraft insurance or the refund of amounts advanced. Sir Albert Spicer brought up the question in the House of Commons in the first meeting under the new cabinet, and the Chamber of Commerce has asked the Board of Trade to take measures also. It is probable that the government will bring in a scheme this month by which the situation will be remedied.

THEFT OF MOTOR CARS BY ORGANIZED BAND.
[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Kansas City, June 24.—Thefts of motor cars worth $300,000 in the last three years are charged to seven members of an organized band, three leaders of which the police declare today are held at the police headquarters here. The men operated between Chicago and San Francisco.

PRESIDENT CONFERS WITH COL. HOUSE ON WAR SITUATION

Wilson Spends Day at Roselyn, Long Island, in Consultation With Private Emisary.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
New York, June 24.—President Wilson reached New York at six o'clock this morning on his way to Roselyn, Long Island, to spend the day with his friend, Colonel E. M. House and discuss the impressions Colonel House received from his recent visit to Europe. Colonel House was expected to tell the President of interviews with the leading government officials of Germany, Great Britain and France, regarding the possibility of peace, the question of which has arisen between those governments and the United States. The visit also afforded the president an opportunity to confer with Col. House on the general war situation and the possibility of co-ordinating American war relief in Europe.

By tunnel the president's car passed under Manhattan and the North and East rivers to the Long Island railroad station in Queens, where it was held for two hours while the party had breakfast. The journey was resumed in time for the president to arrive at Roselyn at nine o'clock.

Dr. Cary Grayson, the White House physician, was one of the party. Miss Margaret Wilson, the president's daughter, is expected to join him at Roselyn later.

After talking with Colonel House at his home, the president intends to take an automobile ride and enjoy a game of golf. The president will have Roselyn at 7:15 o'clock tonight. His special car will be attached to the federal express, and he will continue his journey to the summer White House at Cornish, New Hampshire.

The president's arrival at Roselyn he strolled with the Colonel through the grounds and appeared deeply engrossed in the discussion. Nothing was made public.

The president and Colonel House were left alone and sat for a while in the shade of the broad veranda screened from the roadway by large trees and shrubbery, apparently in earnest conversation. Presently they rose and went for a stroll unattended, and entered a vine covered pergola, at the end of the estate, and sat down.

The president asked many questions and listened in silence for a long period to Colonel House's reply.

Chicago, June 24.—O. W. Franklin, 35 years old, of Burlington, Iowa, and Mrs. Eva Laundal, 25, of Chicago, were killed and J. Wicker, Highpoint, Illinois, and Mrs. M. B. Briggs, Chicago, were severely injured today when the automobile in which they were said to have been returning from Indiana, struck a peddler's wagon. The accident occurred at a bad turn at Harbor Avenue and Ninety-second street.

HINES LUMBER PLANT TO CLOSE ON MONDAY

150,000 Men Will Be Thrown Out of Work As Result of Failure to Arbitrate With Carpenters.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Chicago, June 24.—Taking the lead in action which is estimated to throw 150,000 men out of employment in this city, the Edward Hines Lumber company, the largest in Chicago, announced today that on Monday it will close its twenty yards. The crisis is due to the rejection of arbitration by the carpenters, who have been on a strike for nearly two months.

William Schlake, president of the Illinois Brick company, which will be the next company to cease operations of her building material, predicted that all the brick manufacturers would follow Mr. Hines' lead. "The whole business could have been settled easily," said Mr. Hines. "If the carpenters had shown a disposition to be fair, but they have already by their vote shown that arbitration will be overwhelmingly rejected. There is, therefore, but one thing for my company to do—to close down, and in my judgment the companies have no other recourse."

TESTIMONY FAVORS HARRY THAW'S CASE DURING SECOND DAY

Witnesses Tell of Normal Actions of Defendant on Many Occasions.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
New York, June 24.—At the second day of Thaw's trial on the stand to test his sanity, he stated before the taking of the testimony that he had no fear of Mr. Cook's examination. "I do not care what he asks me," said Thaw, "he can go as far as he likes."

Gustave C. Rodger, a newspaper man who testified that Thaw was sane, was called as the first witness today. His cross-examination yesterday was postponed. He was asked but questioned, whether he had been any doubt in his mind at the time as to the rationality of Thaw.

"I thought at first that he was not quite himself," he said. "But Thaw today is an entirely different man. William J. Shurtliff, an attorney of Coaticook, Quebec, where Thaw was arrested in his flight to Canada, was the next witness. He described the various places Thaw had lived, took place in Canada in which he acted as Thaw's attorney. He testified he had never seen any acts of violence by Thaw during this period, and his conduct in prison was as that of a rational man."

John E. Smith of Sherbrook, Quebec, newspaper man who said that while Thaw was detained in that city he saw him every day and night, and that he had a conversation among a number of strangers in this city that led him to believe that there was a plot on foot to take Thaw across the line by force.

Thaw's attorney told the court he wanted to bring this evidence out in order to show the possible existence of such a scheme was no mere "solution" of Thaw's.

Conviction that Thaw was a rational person was also expressed by Thomas F. Johnson, his attorney at Colbrook, New Hampshire, and Irving A. Hinkley, Thaw's attorney at a preparatory school at Broton, New Hampshire, who interviewed Thaw while acting as a newspaper man.

John B. Stanchfield, Thaw's attorney, made the closing testimony of an orderly at Matawan given Thaw's trial for conspiracy to escape from the institution. The reading was interrupted by the noon recess of the court.

Deputy Attorney Cook announced before the opening session this afternoon that he would apply to the court for the appointment of a commission to take testimony from Charles W. Elliot, president Emeritus of Harvard, as to why Thaw was expelled from that institution. Mr. Cook said he had prepared a series of interrogatories, which he asked former Harvard president, which he had turned over to Thaw's counsel to permit him to prepare the questions for Thaw's side of the case.

NEW QUAKE IS FELT AT CALIFORNIA CITY

Shock Shakes Bricks From Tall Buildings and Ruins Many Small Structures.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
El Centro, Calif., June 24.—Another slight earthquake shock was felt here at 8:30 a. m. today. It took bricks from the Masonic Temple and from various other buildings ruined or damaged by the series of shocks Tuesday night.

$150,000 Damage.
El Centro, Cal., June 24.—Undaunted by the havoc wrought by a severe earthquake shock, within twenty-four hours, the people of various towns began the work of reconstructing among the wrecked buildings, which represented a loss of about $150,000.

At Calexico, Mexall, Heber and in this city, military rule was still enforced. The streets were rapidly cleared of the debris of fallen walls and roofs. In some buildings declared unsafe were roped off and soldiers kept the people out of the danger zone.

The damage in the different cities is as follows: El Centro, $750,000; Calexico, $150,000; Brawley, $100,000; Mexicali, $50,000. At Brawley, Holtville and other smaller towns the total loss is estimated at $200,000 or more.

The damage to the irrigation system in the Imperial Valley, which supplies 400,000 acres, is considered comparatively slight, and will be repaired at once. The dead in Mexicali number eight, four Americans and four Mexicans.

QUAKERS CONTRIBUTE MANY MEN TO BRITISH FLAG.
[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
London, June 24.—The Quakers, notwithstanding their peaceful tradition, have contributed 215 men to the British army and navy and forty-three to the army medical corps. In addition, forty-three have joined the home guard and fifteen are serving on recruiting committees.

Besides the soldiers, the parents of the soldiers openly sympathize with the war. These may be properly expelled, but the feeling against severe measures. Opinion on the subject of war was much divided at the annual meeting, but discussion was avoided.

WISCONSIN DAY AT PYTHIAS CONVENTION HELD AT MENOMINEE.
[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Menominee, Mich., June 24.—This is Wisconsin Day at the convention of the Pythias. An automobile trip was held this morning, and this afternoon the degree teams of the Appleton, Green Bay, Fond du Lac and Oshkosh lodges were scheduled to compete for the silver cup donated by the Menominee lodge. A parade of delegates and degree teams will be held this evening, following which a grand ball will be given in Castle hall.

SENATE DELAYS BILLS

Administration Consolidation Measures are Made Special Orders of Business Before Senate Next Week.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Madison, June 24.—By a margin of one vote the senate bill to permit a referendum on woman suffrage and of passage in the upper house today, the roll standing fifteen to sixteen. A motion by Senator Ackley to reconsider the vote will be acted upon next Wednesday. This will be the suffragists' last hope during this session.

Assembly Under Call.
The assembly was under a call of the house most of the morning, and when finally assembled, dilatory tactics to reconsider the vote by which the tax commission reorganization plan was killed consumed the rest of the time.

The administration forces of the assembly suffered a defeat of the tax commission bill this noon. The assembly by a vote of forty-two to forty-six, refused to reconsider the vote by which the tax commission was killed last week.

This finally disposes of the measure. The administration made a fight for the bill after Assemblyman Crosby's motion, shutting off all debate, was passed, the bill was refiled.

Had the vote been reconsidered, an amendment to modify the bill in many particulars would have been offered by Assemblyman Harrington of Walworth.

The fight of small cities and villages to be relieved of annual reporting to the railroad commission their municipal utilities, ended in a compromise when the senate adopted a substitute of the bill. Under the substitute such utilities need report only such financial items as earnings, and operating expenses, depreciation and cost of renewals and extensions, but that the data in the reports must be furnished upon order of the commission.

The senate concurred in the Hedges bill limiting the price at which text books may be sold in this state to the lowest they are sold in other states.

Consolidation Bills Put Over.
The municipal consolidation bill was made a special order for the senate as a committee of the whole for next Thursday morning, and the public welfare consolidation bill will be taken up in the same manner next Wednesday afternoon.

The senate will meet tonight.

CARRANZA'S NOTE BLOTS OUT HOPES OF MEXICAN PEOPLE

Determination of Greaser Chief to Obliterate Enemies Will Continue Discord in Country.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Washington, June 24.—Official hope that the heads of the warring military factions in Mexico would settle their difference, waned today with General Carranza's note to the U. S. stating that he would not agree to a truce with General Villa pending the settlement of his military campaign to blot out his adversaries.

Reached El Paso, Texas, June 24.—A Carranza army, under General Pablo Gonzales, has reached the suburbs of Mexico City, according to a telegram received by the Carranza agency here today from Vera Cruz, dated yesterday.

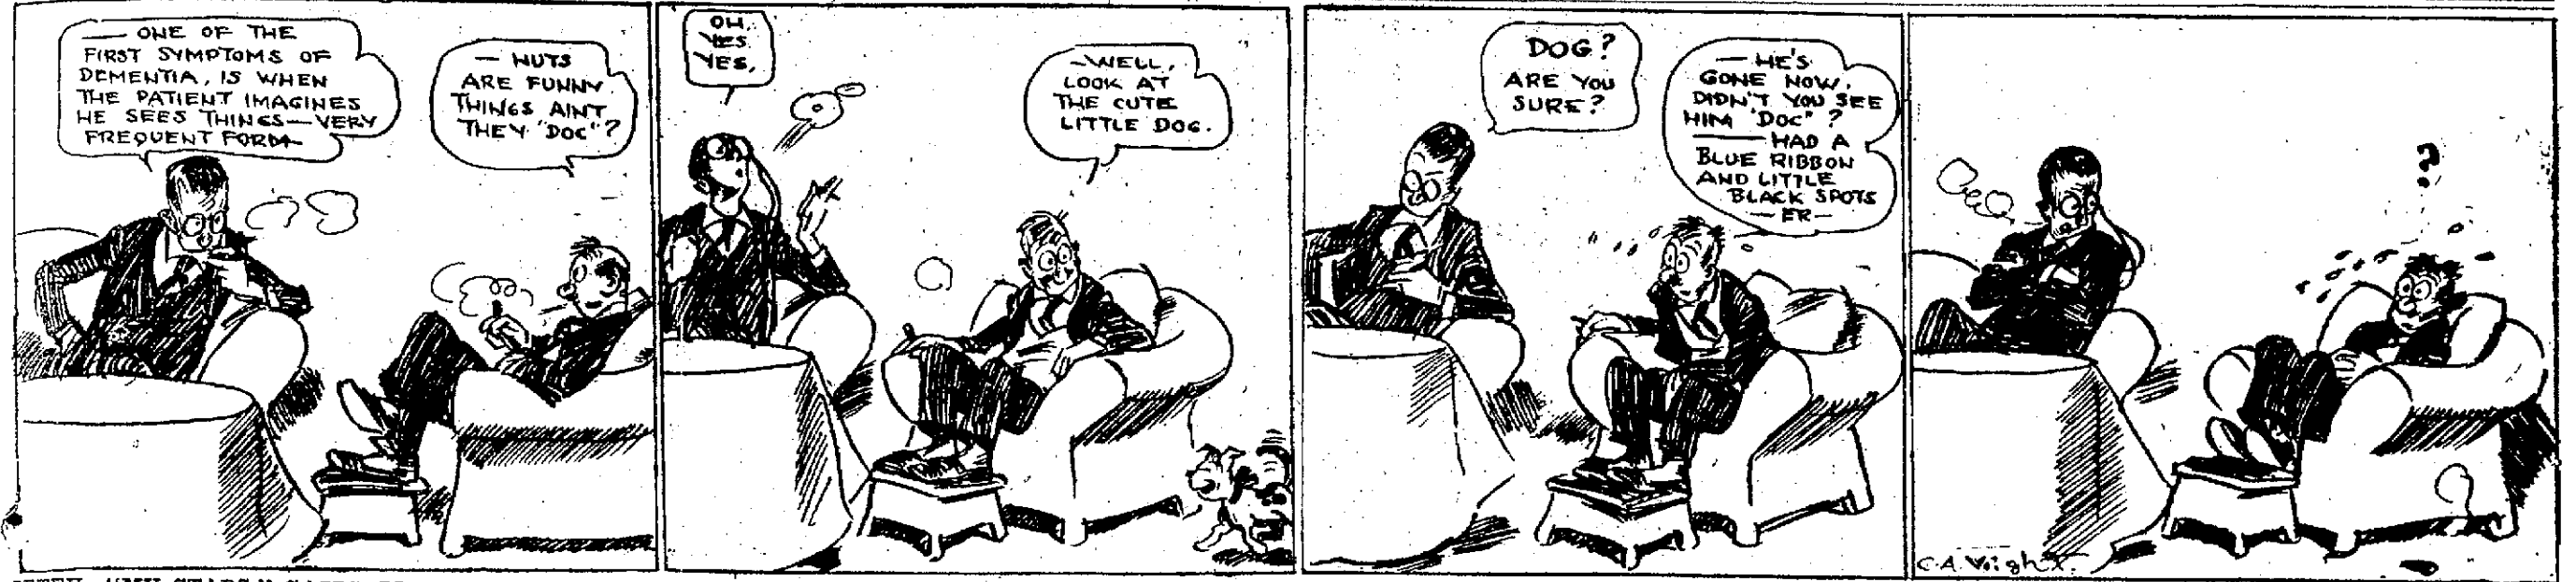

Galveston, June 24.—Zapata forces in Mexico City have entrenched themselves, according to reports reaching the constitutionalist consulate here today from General Gonzales. For this reason the general says, and because he wishes to spare the city the honor of an attack, has delayed his plans of occupation.

General Gonzales reports he has food supplies for the civil population, which will be taken to the city as soon as possible. He expects the order of the capital by the Zapata forces or their evacuation of it.

Reports from General Obregon indicate that he expects to occupy Aguas Calientes before the end of the week. He is repairing the railroad as he advances.

According to a statement last night by the Carranza agency at El Paso, a message from Vera Cruz stated General Obregon already occupied Aguas Calientes.

CLEARING SPEEDWAY FOR RACE SATURDAY

Cars Given Position as Their Time Credits Them. Stutz Team Showing Well.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Chicago, June 24.—The fastest track in the world—Chicago's new board speedway at Broadview—was cleared for action today. Only starters, duly qualified to race in the 500-mile Auto Derby remained in possession of the two-mile oval, for the elimination trials, which were completed yesterday afternoon. Settled finally which aspirants were to be allowed to take a whirl at the $54,000 prize money the speedway park association has hung up for the dedicatory race on the new course. Those who failed to make the course at a clip of eighty-five miles an hour or better were disqualified last night, and the track was left clear today to the men who made the required time. They put in their time in practice work and their performances were watched by thousands of Chicagoans and visitors in the city, many of whom have been daily spectators during the tryouts of the last week.

Here is the official list of Saturday starters, the order of starting and the average time per hour each made in the elimination trials:
1. Dario Resta (Peugeot car) 110 miles.
2. Howard Wilcox (Stutz) 104.75.
3. G. H. Anderson (Stutz) 104.60.
4. Carl Cooper (Stutz) 104.60.
5. Ed Van Raalte (Sunbeam) 103.50.
6. Ed Rickenbacher (Maxwell) 103.20.
7. Bob Burman (Peugeot) 103.
8. Ed Van Raalte (Sunbeam) 103.50.
9. G. Porporato (Sunbeam) 98.65.
10. Louis Chevrolet (Delage) 96.90.
11. Charles Keene (F. R. P.) 96.90.
12. Ed. O'Donnell (Duesenberg) 96.90.
13. Harry Grant (Sunbeam) 96.30.
14. Tom Alley (Duesenberg) 95.
15. Otto Hennini (Mercer) 94.80.
16. Willie Haupt (Duesenberg) 93.90.
17. George Babcock (Peugeot) 93.50.
18. Joe Cooper (Sebring) 92.
19. Billy Chandler (Ogden) 92.
20. Hughie Hughes (F. R. P.) 91.15.
21. Tom Orr (Maxwell) 89.60.
22. Earl Devore (F. R. P.) 89.55.
23. Ralph Mulford (Mulford Special) 86.05.

Friday morning the tanks will be loaded with gasoline and the pits stocked with tools, extra parts and tires in anticipation of breakdowns. Then everything will be in readiness for the duel of speed monarchs for the honor of a new world record to be fought out at the Speedway Saturday.

SOX AND CUBS LEAP AHEAD IN LEAGUES

Sox Corral Pair of Victories Over Indians Yesterday While Cubs Troughed the Cards.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Cleveland, June 24.—Eight straight victories, six games in the lead of the American league—and going strong, is the situation of the Chicago White Sox club when they took both ends of a double header from the Cleveland Indians yesterday. It took considerable hard work on the part of the Sox to win the first game by the score of 3 to 1, but in the second a four run lead in the first let the Indians down easy by the score of 7 to 3.

Cleto worked in the opener and he had his work cut out for him as Rip Haggeman opposed him and refused to allow more than five safe swats. A home run by Roth in the seventh and two doubles coming together in the sixth put across the tallies that topped. Bowen who pitched the ninth inning of the first game was assigned to the tough job of stopping the climbing Sox in the second and he failed miserably. Two bases on balls, a sacrifice and a triple by Shano Collins split the beans for the recruit and Southpaw Coombs took up the job to retire in the seventh. Kiefer hurled for the Sox and showed enough stuff so that the Sox are confident that they have another winning twirler on their staff.

Schulte is Hero.
Chicago, June 24.—Crowding five hits into the fourth inning, the Cubs, defeated the St. Louis Cardinals yesterday by the score of 5 to 3, increasing their lead to two and one-half games. Schulte brought joy to the hearts of the Cubs' rooters when he lammed out a double, triple and a single and his three-base swat started the Cubs on the route to victory. Wildfire's hitting put the Cubs into a three run lead in the fourth and in the fifth he staved off defeat by racing back to the fence and making a picture catch that spoiled two runs. Slim Saloe, the rangy southpaw, hurried for the Cards and he tumbled the Cubs rapidly for three innings when the fireworks started. With the lead Schulte gave them the Cubs started fighting and Vaughn improved to halt the enemy.

Harvard Wins.
Cambridge, Mass., June 24.—Harvard won the series with Yale by defeating the Blue yesterday for the second straight time by the score of 3 to 2. Brickley added to his college fame by tying the score in the ninth.

AUTOISTS IN KHAKI HITTING THE TRAIL

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Kansas City, Mo., June 24.—Dust today hangs low on the old Santa Fe trail. Once again the California run is on. But the men who have given way to touring cars, racers, runabouts and family cars.
On fair days a steady stream of autos loaded down with tents, suitcases, stoves and bath tubs passes the Kansas City Bureau of the United Press which happens to be located on the trail.
Where are they from? Oh, everywhere. They advertise their "home-bug" too. Next they advertise with pennants. "Somewhere, Penn." to California, or "Downeast Conn." or "Up north Michigan." Sometimes signs are painted all over the car—providing somebody is mixing advertising with pleasure.
Khaki clothes predominate. Regular honest-to-goodness catalogue touring clothes. Evidently no one ever cleans his car after he starts for the golden west. They must show the wear and tear of the trip. They must carry mud from every state along the route. Sort of a souvenir stunt, you know.
Occasionally the gasoline trail sees a stranger—or two—walking to the exposition—and selling hair pins or shoe strings to make expenses. Then, maybe, it's a donkey cart or a dog cart to haul the commissary department. But the old trail is busy—they are going west in droves and "seeing America" at close range.

MORRIS MILLER

Branch Rickey's alibi is the failure of Baumgardner, Leverenz and Hamilton to deliver in the box, the batting slump of Walker, Williams and Pratt and Johnny Lavan's delay in showing the expected improvement. Leverenz and Baumgardner have been of no use at all while Hamilton, who won nineteen games in 1914, has won but one game this year, that one being at the expense of the Indians. Bob Hedges, however, has faith in Rickey, and will not switch managers. Instead of cutting loose from Branch, he is likely to try to do some trading.
In only one way is Eddie Collins more valuable than Ty Cobb and that is as a fielder, for the infielder naturally has more chances to aid his team upon the defense than does the outfielder. There is no telling, however, what Ty would do were he afforded the same opportunity. As an outfielder he stars, and the chances are he would be a wonder if placed in the infield.
While Sam Crawford does not come into the limelight as much as his famous teammate, Ty Cobb, he is, nevertheless, almost as valuable a man as Cobb. Crawford's hitting always is clean cut and is not aided by speed of foot. His drives have the resounding ring to them and are usually hard hit balls which the fielders cannot reach. Crawford is playing as good ball now as he ever did in his career, and he is sure to be a star five or six years longer because of the fact that he takes excellent care of himself.

"The White Sox," says Griffith, "are playing beyond their speed." So every one said about the Braves last summer. But you may recall what happened under the strain.
The case of Larry Cheney, the Cubs' best pitcher, is a puzzle. His arm is strong and he is in the finest condition. But he seems to have lost all confidence in himself.

Detroit and Chicago, the two clubs that have been making the greatest battle for first place, almost have a monopoly on the 300 hitters in the American league, four of the twelve being White Sox, while three are Tigers. Philadelphia has two, while Cleveland, New York and Boston each have one. St. Louis and Washington are getting along without any hitting above the coveted mark. Of course, Ty Cobb leads the batters, but the Georgian has slumped a little and his mark is no longer in excess of 400 lacks seven points of that figure, in fact.

Several National leaguers who are generally close to the 300 mark in hitting are below the 250 mark now. Among them are Snodgrass, John Meyers, Hans Wagner, Zimmerman, Wheat, Murray, Byrne, Schulte and Fiskert, the last named hitting only 148.

Ban Johnson has gone on record as saying he would run Ty Cobb out of the league if it were proved that Ty was responsible for the story which appeared over his signature to the effect that the White Sox won so easily at home because of their ability to steal signals. Cobb now comes to the front by saying he will stand by his story. Ban, however, has no real kick coming, as "getting signals" is nothing new in baseball and Cobb did not even insinuate that the White Sox were using any mechanical device to tip off the batters as to what was coming next. As long as the signals are stolen legitimately without the aid of field glasses, the opposition has to take its medicine and Cobb's story did not imply that Rowlands was violating any American league rules.

Otto Hess, the veteran who once wore a Cleveland uniform and who now has drawn his unconditional release from the Boston Braves, may soon sign up with the New Orleans Pelicans again. Otto helped the Peis win two pennants in 1910 and 1911. The vets are almost all without exception having a great year in the southern association. Old Rube Klesinger and Helme Berger are twirling great ball, while such other old birds as Charlie Starr, Brice Lord, Otto Williams and Admiral Schlei are showing great form in batting and fielding.

A recent home run by Bunny Brief has again raised the hope of Manager Rowland that his first sacker will hit up to major standards. They seem to be making more out of Brief's homer in Chicago than they would over a no-hit game by Urban Faber.

The sarcasm of the baseball field sometimes burns. Since the clash between Umpire Rigler and Manager Herge, the Cincinnati club has maintained an attitude of scornful sarcasm toward the umpire. In a recent game Rigler was umpiring and Charlie Doolin was at bat. "Strike," yelled Rigler. "I beg pardon, what do you call 'at'?" inquired Doolin, who thought the ball was off the plate. "I called it a strike," said Rigler belligerently. "What did you think I called it?" "Excuse me," said Doolin to his sweetest manner. "I didn't know but that you called it a sacrifice fly."

BULGARIAN ARMY IS BETTER PREPARED FOR WAR THAN IN 1912

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Sofia, June 24.—The Bulgarian army is now far better prepared for war than it was for the Balkan war of 1912. It comprises four divisions of 120,000 men ready for action, with another ten divisions of 300,000 men of first line reserves, who could be mobilized in a few days. It is necessary should arise this force could be more than doubled.
Bulgaria's entry into the war as the foe of Turkey would relieve pressure on the allies to the south. Adrianople, which the Bulgarians were forced to hand back to the Turks after the last Balkan struggle, has been denuded of its arms for use in the Dardanelles campaign. This ought easily to fall to the Bulgarians, who could then cross down to Rodosto on the sea of Mar-mora. This would cut Constantinople off from Keshan, where the Turks have concentrated their forces for the operations on the Gallipoli peninsula. At least, the Turks would be reduced to communication by sea.
Bulgaria no longer demands Salonika. Her claims are small compared with those of the other Balkan nations, being confined to the really Bulgarian portion of Macedonia with Kavala and its natural outlets on the Aegean Sea.

LAST DAY FOR AD MEN AT CHICAGO CONVENTION

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Chicago, June 24.—This was get-away day for the scores of delegates to the eleventh annual convention of the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World, which has been in session here since Sunday. Besides election of officers and presentation of trophies, the day's program was a big one in the matter of work to be cleaned up before adjournment. Reports of the various committees, the important report of the National Commission, and an "open parliament" were the features of this morning's program. Presentation of trophies, unfinished business, and the election of officers was scheduled for this afternoon.
At a big mass meeting tonight devoted to advertising talks and methods of commerce, the Printers' Ink cup will be presented.

AT MYERS THEATRE.

"The Commuters."
Those who roared at the antics of "Officer 666" and the ludicrous situations of "Stop Thief" will find no disappointing note in "The Commuters." Like its famous predecessors, it is founded on a successful stage farce and therefore depends for its laughs on the funny situations evolved in the plot which, by the way, is a big virtue in five reel comedies.

As usual, two stars instead of one divide the honors, in the persons of exquisite Irene Fenwick and that imitable comedian Charles Jude. Miss Fenwick makes her first appearance in film in this subject and bears the unique distinction of being the only artist of international reputation who works for the "movies" by day and appears on the stage by night. She has recently signed a contract with George Kleine which gives her film services exclusively to him for a term of years.
"The Commuters" will be shown at Myers theatre tonight.

LEAVE it to railroad men to get the right word on chewing tobacco—from agent to Super they are switching to the Real Tobacco Chew. And now they are glad they found the little chew that satisfies on less tobacco. That's why they are letting one another know about it.

A little chew of pure, rich, mellow tobacco—seasoned and sweetened just enough—cuts out so much of the grinding and spitting.

THE REAL TOBACCO CHEW IS NOW CUT TWO WAYS!! W-B CUT IS LONG SHRED. RIGHT CUT IS SHORT SHRED.

Take less than one-quarter the old size chew. It will be more satisfying than a mouthful of ordinary tobacco. Just take a nibble of it until you find the strength chew that suits you, then see how easily and evenly the real tobacco taste comes, how it satisfies, how much less you have to spit, how few chews you take to be tobacco satisfied. That's why it is The Real Tobacco Chew. That's why it costs less in the end. The taste of pure, rich tobacco does not need to be covered up. An excess of licorice and sweetening makes you spit too much.

One small chew takes the place of two big chews of the old kind.

Notice how the salt brings out the rich tobacco taste.

PROFESSIONAL TAXEATERS.
There is a battle royal being fought out at Madison these early summer days that is well worth watching. The band of professional tax-eaters who profit by the waning of the people's money, are apparently banded together to protect their various grafts. They sit up nights planning how to get ahead of the administration's plan for economy. They are a bold, daring, unscrupulous band who recruit their members from all factions of the various parties. The bold statements made by a defeated politician, the determined determination of a man who has long been a patron of the professional job-hunter while he held power, shows clearly how far the factionalists are ready to go between elections to further their ends and prepare for a return to the loaded table of spoils when the opportunity offers. Recently the startling discovery was made that hidden in the senate bill, known as 83, was a clause which would bring back into existence the state election pamphlet, one of the legacies of the past "reform" administrations that have been such costly experiments for the taxpayers of the state. It only indicates the stealth of the professional tax-eaters and to what means they will go to further their ends. The majority of the consolidation administration measures are now in the hands of the senate for consideration and it is to this branch of the legislature that the eyes of the taxpayers are turning for relief from the present strain of taxation. If the members of this branch of the state law-making establishment are false to the trust of the people the public should know it and lay the blame where it belongs. Governor Philipp is fighting against heavy odds and he should be supported by the men who were sent to Madison to enact the will of the people, as proclaimed in the republican state platform.

THAT ECONOMY IDEA.
Platform pledges apparently do not burden political parties to any excessive extent once they hold the whip hand. The Baltimore Star calls attention to the economy idea of the democratic party now that they are in actual control of affairs.

"One of the planks in the democratic national platform adopted at the Baltimore convention declares: 'We denounce the profligate waste of money wrung from the people by oppressive taxation through the lavish appropriations of recent republican congresses. We demand a return to that simplicity and economy which befits a democratic government,' etc., etc."

"The economy record of the first democratic congress since 1897 with a democratic administration behind it is now on the files and open to inspection. The appropriations during the two sessions of this congress were so 'lavish' that they exceeded the appropriations of the last republican congress by $177,000,000."

THE SENATE?
The taxpayers of the state are asking the question, "What is the matter with the state senate?" If ever an issue was clearly defined it was in the campaign which turned the state over to Governor Philipp last fall. The people were disgusted with extravagance and inefficiency, and said by their votes: "We will have no more of it." Every man in the legislature is in honor bound to respect the demands of the voters. This demand is fully outlined by the governor and the program which he is attempting to have adopted should go through without question. It is a non-partisan program, free from politics, based on common sense. The governor was elected to give the people of the state a business administration, and this he is trying to do. The assembly is in sympathy with him, but the senate has adopted a policy of obstruction, which is difficult to understand. The people are thoroughly aroused and there will be a hereafter.

further, and other newspapers of importance are indicating a like desire to ignore the "wisdom" displayed by the former secretary of state, which is freely offered for publication. It is one way to kill off a pest.

This central board of education plan is being fought untiringly by a lobby of university normal school and higher interests that is surprising. The strangest feature of the whole thing is the combination of the educational and the liquor interests. It has been a case of "you scratch my back and I'll scratch yours" for some time past.

President Wilson has promoted Mr. Lansing to be the secretary of state. It is to be hoped that he will stand firmly for what is right, but will have no courage of conviction not to involve this nation in a senseless war for the mere gratification of the egoists who delight in other people's troubles.

Now that Germany and Austria have succeeded in completing their drive against the Russian foe, they can turn their attention to the Italian and the allies' lines. Meanwhile Russia may be preparing for a new coup as soon as it is sufficiently equipped with arms and ammunition.

It is probable that the middle of July will find the Wisconsin legislature still in the throes of efforts to defeat economical legislation in the name of "reform."

SCIENCE AND NONSENSE.
The chief statistician of the State of Wisconsin, according to a report which has been printed in several newspapers and which has not so far been controverted, made some peculiar discoveries in examining death certificates filed by physicians with the State Board of Health. The following examples are selected, says the Embalmers' Monthly.

feeling report is this: Went to bed feeling well, but woke up dead. Another says: "Do not know the cause of death, but patient fully recovered from last illness." A third reported: "Last illness caused by chronic rheumatism, but was cured before death." Still another: "Deceased never had been fatally sick. And this: "Died suddenly; nothing serious."

Some reports are mere absurdities, such as: "Kicked by a horse and shod on the left kidney." "Died suddenly at the age of one hundred and three." To this time he had fair to reach a ripe old age. "Deceased died from blood poison caused by a broken tank, which was remarkable for the automobile struck him between the lamp and the radiator." A mother is reported to have "died in infancy." Now all of these are extracts from reports written or at least signed by gentlemen authorized to practice medicine, and consequently belonging to one of the learned professions. The collection on which they are based by the Wisconsin official may or may not form a conclusive argument against the proposal entertained by many to clothe the medical profession with authority to regulate nearly every human activity, but it is interesting as appealing to the sense of humor and adding to the joy of life.

HEALTH OFFICER MUST BE ON JOB, KERR SAYS

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
San Francisco, June 24.—"The corner stones of public health administration rests are wise legislation, adequate appropriations, and efficient health organizations," said Assistant Surgeon General J. W. Kerr of the United States Public Health Service, in an address before the Section on Preventive Medicine and Public Health of the American Medical Association, here today.

"The Need For Full Time Health Officers" discussed the importance of local health organizations, and stated that the dissemination of authority tends toward the development of such organizations.

He pointed out that health jurisdiction should be sufficiently large to support full time health officers and summarized the legislation recently enacted by some of the states to provide full time health officers. He also considered the progress which had been made in the administration of these laws.

"Public health organization in the United States has been a plant of slow growth, and stimulated for the most part by epidemics. The many Federal and municipal health laws on our statute books have been enacted independently of each other and to meet temporary emergencies. They lack uniformity and the funds provided to enforce them have not generally been sufficient for the purpose. While the local administration should be the strongest, in reality it is the weakest link in our chain of national defense for disease prevention. Fifty-two per cent. of our total population is rural, and it is for this class that adequate health protection should be provided."

COAL CARGOES KEEP LAKE BOATS WORKING

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Cleveland, June 24.—Prosperity reigns in the "Rats" and along the docks. The big elevators that lift a car of coal and dump it into the hatches of lake steamers at one thundering crash, and then go on and keep dumping until a trainload of coal has vanished into the hold, are working overtime. Port statistics show that shipping is on the boom. The mines in the Lake Superior region sent forward more than 5,000,000 tons of ore in May, and shipments up to June 1 were 1,394,440 tons ahead of the same time last year. Mines on the Mesaba range are shipping freely this month, taking advantage of the recent rate cut.

It was only a few minutes after the lingering dinner guest had gone when the doctor came out on the porch, bringing his long-stemmed pipe for a bedtime whiff in the open air.

"You are losing your beauty sleep, little girl," he said, dropping into the chair lately occupied by the guest. "Did you find out anything more tonight?" The daughter did not reply at once, and when she did there was a note of freshly summoned hardihood in her voice.

"We were both mistaken," she affirmed. "Coincidences are always likely to be misleading. I am sorry I told you about them. He has certainly been a present help in time of need to Edward."

As before, the good little doctor had recourse to his pipe, and it was not until his daughter got up to go in that he said gently: "One other word, Charlie, girl: are you altogether sure that the wish isn't father to the thought—about Griswold?"

"Don't be absurd, papa!" she said scornfully, passing swiftly behind his chair to reach the door; and with that answer he was obliged to be content.

CHAPTER XX.

Broken Links.

It was on the second day after the pistol-buying incident in Simmons & Kleinfurt's that Broffin, wishing for solitude and a chance to think in perspective, took to the woods.

A letter from the New Orleans office had reopened the account of the Bayou State Security robbery. The mail communication was significant but inconclusive. One Patrick Sheehan, a St. Louis cab driver, dying, had made confession to his priest. For a bribe of two hundred dollars he had aided and abetted the escape of a criminal on a day and date corresponding to the mid-April arrival of the steamer Belle Julie at St. Louis. Afterward he had driven the man to an up-town hotel (name not given). He could not recall the man's name. But the destination address, "Wabaska, Minnesota," was submitted with the confession.

Broffin felt himself short-sighted from the very nearness of things. The single necessity now was for absolute and unshakable identification. To establish this, three witnesses, and three only, could be called upon. Of the three, two had failed signally—Miss Grieron because she had her own reasons for blocking the game, and President Galbraith. . . . That was another chapter in the book of failure. Broffin had learned that the president was stopping at the De Soto Inn, and he had maneuvered to bring Mr. Galbraith face to face with Griswold in the Grieron bank on the day after the pistol-buying. To his astonishment and disgust the president had shaken his head irritably, adding a rebuke. "No, no, man; your trade makes ye over-suspicious. That's Mr. Griswold, the writer-man and a friend of the Grierons. Miss Madge was telling me about him last week. He's no more like the robber than you are. Haven't I told ye the man was hearsed like a tick?"

With two of the three eye-witnesses refusing to testify, there remained only Johnson, the paying teller of the Bayou State Security. Broffin was considering the advisability of wiring Mr. Johnson when he passed the last of the houses on the lakeside drive and struck into the country road which led by cool and shaded forest windings to the resort hotel at the head of the southern bay. Presently a vehicle overtook and passed him. It was Miss Grieron's trap, drawn by the big English trap-horse, with Miss Grieron herself holding the reins and Raymer lounging comfortably in the spare seat.

Half an hour later Broffin had followed the huge hoof-prints of the great English trap-horse to the driveway portal of the De Soto grounds, where they were lost on the pebbled carriage approach. Strutting on through the grounds into the lake-fronting lobby of the inn, he went in search of Miss Grieron. He found her on the broad veranda, alone, and for the moment unoccupied. How to make the attack so direct and so overwhelming that it could not be withstood was the only remaining question; and Broffin had answered it to his own satisfaction, and was advancing through an open French window directly behind Miss Grieron's chair to put the answer into effect, when the opportunity was snatched away. Raymer, his business apparently concluded, came down the veranda and took the chair next to Miss Grieron's.

Broffin dropped back into the writing-room alcove for which the open French window was the outlet and sat down to bide his time.

"It's a shame to make you wait this way, Miss Madge. McMurry said he had an appointment with Mr. Galbraith, and he was adding calmly, "I found out. How do I know? Because her father bought the draft at poppa's bank, and in the course of time it came back with the Bayou State Security's dated paying stamp on it. See how easy it was!"

Raymer's laugh was not altogether mirthful. "You are a witch," he said. "Is there anything you don't know?"

"Not very many things that I really need to know," was the mildly boastful retort. "But you see, now, how foolish my suspicions were."

Raymer nodded. Though he would not have admitted it under torture, the entire matter figured somewhat as a mountain constructed out of a rather small molehill to a man for whom the subtleties lay in a region unexplored. He wondered that the clear-minded little "social climber," as his sister called her, had ever bothered her nimble brain about such an abstruse and far-fetched question of identities.

"You said, a few minutes ago, that Griswold calls himself a socialist. That isn't quite the word. He is a sociologist."

Miss Grieron ignored the nice distinction in names. "Socialism goes with being poor, doesn't it?" she remarked. "Since Mr. Griswold's ship has come in, I suppose he finds it easier, and pleasanter, to be a theoretical leveler than a practical one."

"That is another thing I have never been quite able to understand," said the iron founder. "You say his father left him poor; where did he get his money?"

"Why, don't you know?" was the innocent query. And then, with a pretty affectation of embarrassment, real or perfectly simulated: "If he hasn't told you, I mustn't."

"Of course, I don't want to pry," said Raymer, loyal again. "I can give you a hint, and that is all. Don't you remember 'My Lady Jezabel,' the unsigned novel that made such a hit last summer?"

"Why, bless goodness, yes! Did he write that?"

"He has never admitted it in so many words. But I'll divide a little secret with you. He has been reading bits of his new book to me, and phew! a blind person could tell! I asked him once if he could guess how much the author of 'My Lady Jezabel' had been paid, and he said, with the most perfectly transparent carelessness: 'Oh, about a hundred thousand, I suppose.'"

"Tally!" said Raymer, laughing. "Griswold has put an even ninety thousand into my little egg basket out at the plant. But, of course you knew that, everybody in Wabaska knows it by this time."

Miss Grieron did not reply, and for a little while they were both silent. Then Raymer said:

"I wonder if McMurry doesn't think I've dropped out on him. I guess I'd better go and see. Don't wait any longer on my notions, unless you want to, Miss Margery."

Raymer laughed. "Of course nothing came of it!"

"Nothing at all. And then, right out of a clear sky, came another proof that was even more convincing. Do you happen to know who the young woman was who discovered the bank robber on the steamboat?"

"I? How should I know?"

"I didn't know but she told you," was the demure rejoinder. "It was Charlotte Farnham."

"What!" ejaculated Raymer. But he was not more deeply moved than was the man behind the window curtains. If Broffin's dead cigar had not been already reduced to shapeless utility, Miss Grieron's cool announcement, carrying with it the assurance that his secret was no secret, would have settled it.

Raymer remembered it very well, and admitted it.

"Yes; I remember it all very clearly. Also I recollect how the second newspaper notice told how the robber escaped from the officers at St. Louis. But you haven't told me how you were scared," Raymer suggested.

"I'm coming to that. This escape we read about happened on a certain day in April. It was the very day on which poppa met me on my way back from Florida, and we took the eleven-thirty train north that night. You haven't forgotten that Mr. Griswold was a passenger on that same train?"

"But, goodness gracious, Miss Margery! any number of people were passengers on that train. You surely wouldn't—"

"Hush!" she said, and through the lace window hangings Broffin saw her lift a warning finger. "What I am telling you, Mr. Raymer, is in the strictest confidence; we mustn't let a breath of it get out. But that wasn't all. Mr. Griswold was dreadfully sick and, of course, he couldn't tell us anything about himself. But while he was delicious he was always muttering something about money, money; money that he had lost and couldn't find, or money that he had found and couldn't lose. Then when we thought he couldn't possibly get well, Doctor Bertie and I ransacked his suitcases for cards or letters or something that would tell us who he was and where he came from. There wasn't the slightest thing!"

"And that was when you began to suspect?" queried Raymer.

"That was when the suspicion began to torture me. I fought it; oh, you don't know how hard I fought it! There he was, lying sick and helpless; utterly unable to do a thing or say a word in his own defense; and yet, if he were the robber, of course, we should have to give him up. It was terrible!"

"I should say so," was Raymer's sympathetic comment. "How did you get it straightened out, at last?"

"It hasn't been altogether straightened out until just lately—within the past few days. He went on gravely. 'After he began to get well, I made him talk to me—about himself, you know. There didn't seem to be anything to conceal. At different times he told me all about his home, and his mother, whom he barely remembers, and the big-hearted, open-handed father who made money so easily in his profession—'

"He was the 'Griswold,' the great architect, you know—that he gave it to anybody who wanted it—but I suppose he has told you all this?"

"No; at least, not very much of it."

Miss Grieron went on smoothly, falling sympathetically into the reminiscent vein.

"Kenneth went to college without ever having known what it is to lack anything in reason that money could buy. A little while after he was graduated his father died."

"Leaving Kenneth poor, I suppose; he has intimated as much to me, once or twice," said Raymer.

"Leaving him awfully poor. He wanted to learn to write, and for a long time he stayed on in New York, living just any old way, and having a dreadfully hard time of it. I imagine, though he would never say much about that part of it. That is why he thinks he is a socialist. At last I felt that I just must know, at whatever cost. One day when we were driving, I brought him here and—"

"I introduced him to Mr. Galbraith. I was so scared that I could taste it—but I did it!"

Raymer laughed. "Of course nothing came of it!"

"Nothing at all. And then, right out of a clear sky, came another proof that was even more convincing. Do you happen to know who the young woman was who discovered the bank robber on the steamboat?"

WHO PAYS?

WHEN JUSTICE SLEEPS

BY EDWIN BLISS

(Copyright, 1915, by Pathe Exchange, Inc. All Moving Picture Rights and all Foreign Copyrights Strictly Reserved.)

Though he would have knocked down the man who even queried him regarding his matrimonial judgment, Joseph Drum brushed as he reluctantly gave room to a traitorous thought in his mind. For weeks, for months he had felt the ground slipping beneath his feet, had seen the pyramid of debt piling higher and higher, yet had dared take no exact measurement of it, hoping against all reasonable hope that "something would turn up," to save him.

Five thousand dollars a year! What a huge sum it had seemed to them both! His lips curled in a bitter smile. Five thousand dollars a year and already, within a few months after marriage, his surplus savings had been wiped out, his salary spent, and he owed ten thousand dollars.

And it was his own fault—he, the banker, his fault. It was a child he had married, a pampered, spoiled child.

A perfect wife she had made him, perfect save in her extravagance. And he had not warned at the time when warning would have been easy. Now, she would take it as a reproach. Now where could he hope to raise ten thousand dollars? How could he make the six hundred dollars in his pocket over into a sufficient sum to start him anew?

He pushed the tell-tale tabulation hurriedly aside as Flo swept into the bank and sought his cage. The old thrill of delight swept other thoughts aside as he revealed in the grace, the beauty of her, drank in deep drafts of the intoxicating devotion that glowed in her eyes as they found his own. He even smiled as, in her dear, wheedling way she glowingly described the beauties of a pearl necklace, amazingly low-priced, she had as his eyes followed her out of sight, then the smile disappeared as a movement of his hands brought the fatal inventory of debts to light again.

Not more closely did the closely meshed cage shut him away from those outside than his position debarred him from raising such an amount of money.

Even as he thought of substantial men's opinion of him, his brain, by some strange quip peculiar to those closely harassed, flew to Fred Williams—his brother-in-law. Their acquaintance was but casual. The man was a gambler, a sporting man of a character such as would have made closer acquaintance impossible for a bank teller. Still, he had taken a liking to the man on the night of that wedding supper that had lasted till dawn. He had noticed that the gambler touched no liquor; that he skillfully managed to handle the other guests who had imbibed too freely.

The hours dragged their interminable length across the clock dial. He thought the hands would never point to three. In those hours the teller seemed to pass a lifetime. But they finally came to an end and, before the doors were even closed he was upon the street, striding swiftly toward a certain cigar store, which he knew was used as a blind for the gambling house in the rear which Williams visited.

The gambler made explanation simple by cutting squarely to the point. From under his brows he appraised Drum, in that swift, incisive glance which a faro dealer gives the players about his bank, most keenly and decisively appraising of all looks.

"Flo's a great game, Drum," the gambler admitted slowly. "She's been a dandy sister to me. But she certainly does throw up the coin. She's got you on the bum already. How much are you in for?"

He whistled as Drum thrust the list of debts into his hand, his eyes squinting narrowly from it to the harassed teller. Suddenly he came to a decision.

SUGAR SITUATION FULLY EXPLAINED BY FACTS STATED

Striving Industry Disrupted by Tariff Changes Sees One More Year of Profitable Operation.

Numerous questions as to why the immense factory of the Rock County Sugar Beet Co. is not in operation have been asked repeatedly and many theories evolved as to the why's and wherefore's. The following article on the Wisconsin sugar beet situation in the Facts About Sugar may explain the situation as it appears to the owner of the property in question.

Down to the year 1913 the beet sugar industry of Wisconsin was enjoying a prosperous development and was ranked as one of the most important agricultural resources of the state. A report of the Department of Agriculture, issued in 1910, said in reference to this subject: "The beet sugar industry is thoroughly established in Wisconsin. The farm lands are rich and especially productive of root crops."

At that time there were four beet sugar factories in operation in the state with a daily capacity for handling 2,300 tons of beet. These factories were located at Chippewa Falls, Janesville, Madison and Menomonie.

One thing that the representatives of the Department of Agriculture could not foresee in writing of the sound basis and encouraging prospects of the Wisconsin beet growing industry was that it might be made through legislative action by the federal government to undermine this thriving industry.

With the adoption of the Underwood tariff bill, providing for a reduction in the customs rate on imported sugar and its admission free of duty after May 1, 1916, the Wisconsin sugar industry received a scattering blow. The farmers of the state refused to grow beets at the unremunerative prices necessary to compete with the poorly paid labor of foreign sugar-growing countries. Capital withdrew its support as soon as the free sugar law was decided upon and payment was demanded upon the loans outstanding against the beet sugar companies.

During the season of 1914, three of the four Wisconsin sugar factories were closed down and the fourth—at Menomonie Falls—ran at only a small part of its capacity. It was expected that when this factory closed down at the end of last season it would mark the end of the Wisconsin sugar industry.

The outbreak of the European war, looking up the export sugar supplies from that European source, resulted in the price of sugar in the United States and made it reasonably certain that the beet sugar companies of the United States could continue in operation for another season at least.

Under this stimulus the factories at Madison and Chippewa Falls are to reopen this year and will be operated on lease, the stockholders of the companies having declined to invest further sums in the chances of a single season. The factory at Menomonie Falls is to continue in operation while the one at Janesville will remain closed.

Altogether about 18,000 acres of beets have been contracted for in Wisconsin this season, but a considerable part of these is for one of the Michigan factories, and the product of only about 10,000 acres will be worked up in the three Wisconsin factories which are to operate. This represents a decided increase over last year, when only one factory was in operation, but is less than half the beet acreage of the state prior to the enactment of free sugar. With the reduced acreage and the consequent short runs which the factories will be compelled to make, their returns, even with a fairly price for sugar, will be small.

Except for a continuation of the European war beyond the present year, or a change in the free sugar clause of the tariff law, this is probably the last year that sugar beets will be grown in Wisconsin. The destruction of the industry will be a decided loss to the agricultural resources of the state as the beet growing farmers have found by experience that the cultivation of sugar beets particularly in connection with dairying and stock raising, adds greatly to the yields of all their crops.

With a continuation of conditions enabling sugar production to live and develop, it undoubtedly would have become one of the great agricultural industries of Wisconsin. According to the reports of the Department of Agriculture, the state contains over 10,000,000 acres of and adapted to sugar beets. It is noteworthy, too, that the yield per acre of beets in Wisconsin is above the average for the rest of the country. The people of this state use every year over 200,000,000 pounds of sugar and to produce only the amount require by the inhabitants of the state would furnish employment to ten or a dozen sugar factories and to tens of thousands of farmers and workers in fields and factories.

BELOIT MAN GIVEN TERM OF TWO YEARS

Leon Lighthart. Goes to Leavenworth Prison for Violation of the Mann Act.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Madison, Wis., June 24.—Leon Lighthart, of Beloit, Wis., was sentenced to two years in Leavenworth penitentiary by Federal Judge A. L. Sanborn here for violating the Mann act. He was accused of inducing 17-year-old Ruth Johnson of Beloit to accompany him across the state line into Illinois. The girl upon being brought back was sent to the industrial school for girls at Milwaukee. Lighthart is married and has two children. The Johnson girl insists she will marry Lighthart when he is released. A peculiar feature of the case is that they sought to evade prosecution under the Mann act by walking from Beloit into Illinois. Transportation of a woman, however, does not constitute the only offense under this law, inducement and abetting being equally serious.

Orfordville News

Orfordville, June 23.—Dr. Lawton from Brodhead, was in the village for a short time on Wednesday morning on professional business.

Berdell Parkerson of Chicago, is spending some time in the village, the guest of relatives.

Rev. C. J. Kvale went to Minneapolis on Monday and will spend a few days in the Twin Cities.

Dr. T. W. Nuzum of Janesville, came to Orfordville on Wednesday morning and was in consultation with Dr. W. F. Egan.

H. C. Taylor made a record sale of blooded cattle on Monday. He sold to Col. Loudon of Oregon, Ill., nineteen head of registered Jerseys.

Mrs. Nick Larson had a narrow escape from serious injury on Wednesday, while driving from her home to town. When near the east village limits one of the front wheels of the buggy came off letting one end of the front axle down. The horse became frightened and commenced to kick. The occupants of the buggy, consisting of Mrs. Larson, her daughter-in-law and two small children, were unable to either get out of the rig or manage the frightened animal. After being dragged in this condition for some distance the other front wheel came off, letting the whole front end of the buggy to the ground. The four of the buggy was tipped so far forward that the occupants could not even see the horse, which was vainly trying to run or extricate himself from the buggy.

Assistance came about this time and the frightened animal, after being quieted down, was unhitched from the buggy and the captives liberated, none the worse for their experience, except being thoroughly frightened.

A crate of eggs that were carrying the "scrambled" article but asked from this no damage was done. The supposition is that the buggy had been backed for a considerable distance since it was last oiled and in this way the burst had been loosened. The horse was considerably cut and bruised by kicking against the bolts in the front axle.

NORTHEAST PORTER

Northeast Porter, June 22.—The Misses Hairold and Moses of Beloit, are visiting at the Ernest Haylock home.

Goodyear Fortified Tires

Cost Users $5,000,000 Less

Our last price reduction—made February 1st—will save Goodyear users about five million dollars this year. And that was our third reduction in two years, totaling 45 per cent.

Yet Note This

Yet Goodyear Fortified Tires embody many extras. Five are costly features found in no other tire. The rest are found in few.

If we omitted those extras, we could save on this year's probable output $1,635,000. We could add that to our profits, yet Goodyear tires would look as good as now.

This year's improvements alone will cost us $500,000 this year. All to give you extra wear. And we shall spend $100,000 on research this year to find more improvements still.

They Are Yours

These extras belong to you. They mean less rim-cuts, less blowouts, less loose treads. They mean more rubber, more fabric, more mileage, less trouble. Most tire users know that, so Goodyear tires far outlast any other.

Prove it yourself this summer. It will bring you tire contentment.

Any dealer, if you ask him, will supply you Goodyear tires.

Men are now adopting Goodyear tires faster than we can supply them. We have never seen anything like it.

CHINESE GIRL MAKES AMERICAN HABITS HER OWN

Denver, Colo., June 24.—Manual training high school here has a Chinese girl, who is a recent arrival made the place for you to get a good education. She is thoroughly imbued with the spirit of the American girl. She even makes American jokes and is a fluent, though moderate, user of American slang.

She is not a "grind." She "adores" football and at a recent rally made the best speech of any one on the program, teacher not excepted. She "just loves" to dance the latest American dances. She wears American clothes of the latest fashion as if to the manner born. In short, she's ultra American in everything but her parentage.

She was born in Greeley, Colo., and has always gone to the public schools.

"The children used to call me 'chink' and I'd run home crying to my father," said Mary. "But he'd say, 'Never mind; just study your lessons. School is the place for you to get a different idea about the education of your daughters than the most Chinese men. If he had been like them, I'd have been married off long ago, and when I'm twenty I'll be a hopeless idiot, according to Chinese ideas.'"

Mary Hung says she is going to well-learned and afterward study medicine. Eventually her ambition is to go to China and be a doctor in the government service.

Passing of Youth.
To me the passing of youth was escaping from torment of passion, strife and trouble into a placid content. My griefs and joys grew less violent. I ceased hunting those who had wronged me, and, in lesser degree, grew calmer in my attachments. Undisturbed by passions I found I could think more clearly, be more liberal and un-

BIDS ON CONDENSARY PLANT ARE HELD UP

Valencia and Footville Companies' Referee in Bankruptcy Will Await Trustees' Reports on Prices Offered.

The report of the trustees of the Valencia and Footville condensed milk companies will determine whether or not all bids offered today for the purchase of the four condensaries will be rejected or whether certain bids for certain plants will be accepted.

Because of irregularities in filing some of the bids and because three of them did not scale up to 75 per cent of the appraisal figures, acceptance of the bids in federal court Wednesday morning was held in abeyance and the trustees instructed to file a written report, quoting the figures and recommendations. This report will recommend only acceptance of the bid of E. V. Warneke, Hillsboro, for the Hillsboro plant, for $41,000.

List of bids: On the Middleton plant, M. V. Borders, representing the Nelson-Morris Packing company, $36,000. Pacific Coast Condensed Milk company, $41,115. Hillsboro plant, E. V. Warneke, Hillsboro, $41,000. Reedsburg plant, Libby, McNeil & Libby, $37,500. Footville plant, Pacific Coast company, $41,115.

The subscribing investors, through the trustee, W. R. Montague of La Crosse submitted a bid of $65,200 for the Middleton plant, asking also conveyance in their rights use of the names Honey Bee and Golden Key. This figure was not accompanied by a certified check. Stenographic mistakes added further to irregularities in the figure and Attorney Chauncey Blake opposed acceptance of it. Mr. Winter, acting for the investors, said that the bid was made in good faith, carrying with it $25,000 more than the next nearest bid and that it should not be rejected because of technicalities. Whether Judge Lewis, referee, had legal right to determine whether copyrighted names could be sold with viable assets, was a question that neither attorneys nor the court cared to answer. Because of the complicated nature of all the bids action was postponed. The Hillsboro plant, it is understood, will be sold to Mr. Warneke.

Appraised Values.

The plants are appraised as follows: Middleton, $62,000; Hillsboro, $53,865; Reedsburg, $46,669; Footville, $61,947. Only one of these bids, that of the subscribing investors for the Middleton plant, is in excess of 75 per cent of appraised value.

Any attempt to transfer the phrase "Valencia Process," which was copyrighted personally by M. A. Pee, will be fought by Mr. Pee's attorneys, it is said.

If you have any article which you wish to sell the public know it through a classified ad.

TOBACCO GROWERS GREET WARM SPELL

Farmers, Held Off by Cold Rains, Eager to Transplant While Weather Permits.

With the breaking off of the cold rains, and the re-appearance of the sun the farmers, who have contemplated putting in tobacco plants have started the work of transplanting. According to a statement by an extensive grower in this section about one-fourth of the tobacco that is usually planted near here has been transplanted. This is very late and much of it should have been in long before this date.

From all appearances there will be about as much tobacco raised this year as any previous, although some of the growers were disappointed in prices last year. Dealers and farmers though look for a prosperous tobacco year, providing the weather stays as it now is. Some seed beds have failed and in these cases the farmers are always late in setting out their plants as it takes some time to buy the plants. There is another fear and that is the havoc of the grub and cut worm, which, when he puts in his appearance, is a persistent pest.

The local warehouses are now experiencing the dull season and work is slack. The Barnes warehouse is still at work sorting. The help in this section, although in some parts this has become a serious matter. The Edgerton Reporter says: An unusual sight of corn planting, potato planting and tobacco transplanting carried on in adjacent fields that can be witnessed these days as one drives through the country is only another indication of a most peculiar season. As between corn and tobacco the bet is that the tobacco crop has the better chance of the two.

However poor the outlook is to dealers in this section, the general theory is that it will be a banner tobacco year taken as a whole.

MISS AMELIA JENSEN
AND CLYDE OGDEN
UNITED IN MARRIAGE

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Edgerton, June 24.—At eight o'clock last evening Rev. J. Linnevald read the marriage service in the Lutheran church, uniting in marriage Miss Amelia Jensen and Clyde Ogdén, both of this city. The bride was dressed in white crepe de chine and wore a long maine bridal veil, fashioned into a pretty wedding bonnet with a coronet of white lilies of the valley interwoven. Miss Leona Berry and Ben Dallman, sister and brother of the groom accompanied the couple to the altar. After the wedding the bridal couple, with a few relatives and friends, returned to the groom's parental home, where an elaborate wedding supper was prepared. The bride is a native of Norway, where her parents still live. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Ogdén of this city. Both young people are well known in this vicinity and have a large group of friends who wish them well in their union. A large audience of friends witnessed the impressive ceremony.

ONLY A FEW CAN GO.

Those who are so fortunate that expense does not have to be considered are now going to health resorts to get rid of the impurities in the system that cause rheumatism, backache, swollen, aching joints and stiff, painful muscles. If you are one of those who cannot go, yet feel that you need relief from such pain and misery, try Foley Kidney Pills. They restore the kidneys to healthful activity and make you feel well and strong. W. T. Sher-

Miss Agnes Hart of Brownstown visited Katherine and Agnes Pierce the first of the week.

The old frame buildings at the rear of the Baker's crockery and hardware stores, used for many years as a tin shop and store room, are being torn down and a modern building, hollow block will be erected 44x70, which will make an 18 foot extension to the stores and also a tin shop in the rear.

COALITION CABINET FAILS IN RESULTS

Neither English Party Seems Satisfied With the Selections of the Other Side.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

London, June 24.—The coalition cabinet has apparently not arranged any political truce between the party organs, which are quite as antagonistic as before. The joint government was formed. Neither party seems satisfied with the selections of the other side.

No sooner was the appointment of Dr. Christopher Addison announced, as Parliamentary Secretary of Munitions, to take the most recent instance, than the Globe, a conservative organ, asks whether a man who had been professor of anatomy and medical lecturer and writer so many years before entering parliament is capable of bringing business methods to bear on the organization of war supplies under Lloyd George.

We had hoped when the new government came into existence, all elements the Globe, "that the era of criticism had been brought to an end and that we should all be able to work together for the common good with complete confidence in one another. But such an appointment as that of Dr. Addison to an office of vital importance is like a douche of cold water upon these aspirations."

Liberal papers, which had not yet recovered from the shock of the high preferment given Sir Edward Carson and the others engaged in arming northern Ireland for revolution during the home rule crisis, raised a outcry over the appointment of the militant Ulsterman, J. H. M. Campbell, M. P., to the lord chancellorship of Ireland, which was announced concurrently with Dr. Addison's.

The Manchester Guardian declares a grave political situation has arisen in Ireland because of it.

Those who had been praising the growth of Ireland for the allies in Southern Ireland and had begun to rejoice in its fruition in the steady flow of recruits from classes and districts that had been holding aloof in doubt, are now gravely concerned about the development," says the Guardian.

The Freeman's Journal, the nationalist organ, says Campbell identified himself with the "preachers of anarchy."

The Daily News calls the appointment the "death knell of the political truce in Ireland, while the Chronicle, also an organ of the liberal party, more mildly says: "Whatever Mr. Campbell's merits as a lawyer, his appointment as the head of the judiciary in Ireland at this juncture would be received by disunity by Irish nationalists. It would, in fact, be regarded as a grievous affront."
